An Idea Some Folks Have

He was looking at a typo
Piling letters in his stick.
And each one seemed to fall in line
So gracefully and slick.
"That's easy work," he muttered,
"I c'en could do it well
If I only had half a chance,
And could the boxes tell."
The typo bade him try his hand.
O'erjoyed the stick he took.
He set one line—it's standing yet—
It BEARS THIS SORT of look.

CONSUMPTION CURED.

AN old physician retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma and all throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. THE American Republicans are in session for the purpose of nominating a party candidate for the Presidency. The chances seem favorable to the Nomination of Mr. Blaine, the Ex Secretary of State, who has resigned his position in the Cabinet, so that he can oppose the present President.

Rainy River.

A RECENT letter from the Rainy River District reports the land along the River good, but owing to the wet season the settlers have not been able to get in any crop, vegetation is about two weeks later than here and it has rained almost every day for over a month, so that the water is very high and farming operations impossible.

Last week at Rat Portage the weather was so cold that overcoats were in requisition.

A cold, or exposure, many cause the poisonous acids in the blood to clog its circulation. This is rheumatism. Clark's Lightning Liniment will stop the pain at once. It should be taken both internally and externally if the attack is severe, and it affords instant relief. If the pain appears again, it should be met with the same treatment, until a cure is effected. This wonderful preparation has worked some remarkable cures among rheumatic sufferers. Where once tried, it is always used after. Sold by all druggists; price 50 cents. Clark Chemical Company. Toronto, New York.

Many Ladies

All About Shorthand.

THIS is the title of a 32 page pamphlet of information, containing answers to all the questions an inquirer would be likely to ask about books, instruction, salaries of stenographers, how to secure positions, etc., etc. It will show what young men have done at home on farms and in workshops; how from the humblest beginnings the highest success has been reached by learning this art at piece-meal study, and while pursuing other occupations. The success of stenographers as compared with the success of young men in any other vocation in life, will be seen to be marvelous and encouraging. The author of this system was himself a farmer's boy and learned the art while following the plow. The information he gives in this pamphlet will be of interest and value to every young man (or young woman either) who must earn their own living. The pamphlet is mailed for 5 one cent postage stamps to anyone writing for it and mentioning the paper in which this article appears.

What a blessed privilege it is to be a farmer! a real farmer who farms, we mean. To be solemnly assured by statesmen that the basis of the country's prosperity is successful agriculture, to hear governors and members of Parliament tell how little they know about farming, is the happy lot of the tiller of the soil in these cattle-show days. To be a farmer, then, is to be greater than a king, for if the farmer can believe what the orators tell him—and they are all honorable men with "Hon." before their names—he is a king maker. Not only is his vanity exquisitely pleased, but his sense of humor is delighted by the subsequent spectacle of a governor's astonishment at the size of the mammoth pumpkins, and staff officers' attempts to preserve martial dignity while leaning over the edge of a porciuarium or pig-pen to get a better view of the points of a porker. Verily the political pleasures of the cattle shows more than compensate for the toil in the harvest field.

ESCAPED FROM RUSSIANS.

Two British Sealers Who Managed to Get Away from their Captors.

A Victoria, B.C., despatch says:—Donald McCush and Andrew Thompson, two of the crew of the schooner Maria seized by Russians off Copper Island, August 21, reached home this morning, having worked their passage to San Francisco on the Russian Fur Company's schooner Leon from Petropaulovsky, and been shipped to Victoria by the British consul. They arrived penniless, but glad. The Maria was seized fifteen miles off the island, her proximity to land being due to the fact that the chronometer got out of order, and the captain lost his bearings in a fog. The schooner was seized by the steamer Kotick, having 600 skins aboard at the time. The crew were immediately taken to Petropaulovky. The populace were afraid to aid them, so they fared badly. McCush and Thomson were fortunate in getting away, and left to, if possible, induce their Government to send relief to those left behind.

"The Russians don't want to be put to any expense," say the escaped prisoners, "and they won't keep prisoners if they have to feed them. They unload them somewhere where they can't get work and tell them they are free to obtain employment. We heard at Petropaulovsky of one British hunter who attempted to row away when ordered to stop by a Russian patrol. He was shot and the body thrown over without ceremony. Particulars we could not obtain. A Russian told us too that the cruiser Latiaka had orders to continue seizing as long as there was a schooner in northern waters and to scuttle or blow up any schooner captured that could not be conveniently taken care of."

England and Cholera.

England is now in the seventh week of daily and continuous danger from the presence of cholera in almost every large city on the Baltic, the North Sea and the Channel, from St. Petersburg to Havre. No quarantine has been established, no trade has been delayed, and no travel has been interrupted. Nothing has been done by the English authorities but to follow up the few individual cases with isolation and disinfection. Yet England has had no cholera epidemic. Local sanitary precautions have been ample to suppress the disease in the few places where it has appeared and exclude it from all other places. This is the same experience which England had from 1882 to 1887. In those years cholera appeared successively on the Red Sea and on the coasts of the Mediterranean. It overspread Italy. It found its way all over Spain. There were cities in both countries which had some of the severest epidemics in the history of cholera. In both countries and in each city where the disease appeared there was the grossest sanitary neglect and it spread nowhere except where this neglect existed. Yet with constant trade and uninterrupted travel between England and these coasts and lands there was never a time when cholera appeared in England except in scattered cases.

Imprisoned in a Safe.

Mr. William Thompson, the city assessor, was the victim of an extraordinary accident on Saturday in Philadelphia. He was in search of a document in the large safe vault of the City Hall when the clerks closed and locked the vault and then left the building. He suffered terribly from want of air, and was not released until a late hour at night; his failure to return home caused an inquiry to be made, which revealed the fact that he was last in the vicinity of the vault. A visit to his office resulted in the discovery of his captivity, his shouts being heard, but the only person possessing the combination lived five miles away, at Merchantville, and Mr. Thompson could not get out until this man had been sent for to open the door. When finally released Mr. Thompson was terribly weakened by his shrieks and his struggle for air. He now lies at his home in a critical condition.

Shocking Accident with Dynamite.

A shocking accident, which will probably have fatal results, was reported from a quarry at Oughterard, on the Galway and Clifden Railway. A dynamite charge failed to go off, and three of the workmen, named Welby, Walsh, and Dunne proceeded to extract the charge. They pulled out the fuse and were re-tamping the rock, when the charge exploded, destroying one of Welby's eyes, the tamping bar passing through his neck, while other portions of his body were torn away. Walsh was also terribly mutilated, and his eyes destroyed with sand and pebbles, some of which entered the head. Dunne came off best, as only the sinews of his wrist are torn, and he has sustained a few flesh wounds on the face. Welby and Walsh are lying in hospital in a very critical condition.

Wonders From a Well.

On the 7th of July, 1890, workmen engaged in sinking an Artesian well in Sandy Valley, near Niria, N. M., struck an open seam from which a cold stream or current of air rushed with such force as to remove a twelve-pound rock that had been placed over the opening. This current of air was charged with millions of small bugs, each having but two legs, no wings and a small red circle on his back. They lived but a short time after coming into light and warm air.

Sir Edwin Arnold is an optimist in most things, and he includes in his optimistic regard not only Japan but the United States. To a young friend who announced to him a project for entering upon a new business venture, Sir Edwin enthusiastically exclaimed: "I'm glad to hear it. Go ahead, my dear boy. You'll succeed; of course you'll succeed. You'll make money; everybody makes money in this wonderful country.

Emperor William's threatened attempt to reduce the number of liquor shops in Germany by increasing the taxes imposed on them seems to have been abandoned: but there was ample reason for carrying it into effect. There are 10,913 places in Berlin alone where wine and beer are sold. In one street, the Friedrichstrasse, there are only 251 houses, but these contain 253 liquor shops. While the liquor shops have increased to the number of 2806 in ten years, the tea, coffee and chocolate rooms and soda water booths have decreased in number. There is evident need of reform in this matter; but the beer drinkers appear to be too influential for even the Emperor to cope with.

Farmers and Manufacturers.

Much that has been said in advocacy of the present protective policy adopted by Canada, shows either ignorance of the conditions under which the farmers carry on their business, or indifference to agricultural interests.

A farmer is as truly a "manufacturer" as the maker of those implements used in tilling the soil or gathering its products.

It is his occupation to convert raw materials into goods for consumption. Land, fertilizers, seed, sunshine, rain, left to themselves will no more produce a crop of grain, or roots, than timber and iron left to themselves will develop into ploughs, or reapers. The producing powers, the elements that give marketable value to those things which a farmer has to sell, are skill and industry, working in harmony with, and assisted by those laws of Nature, upon the observance of which, and upon the co-operation of which, depends the fruitfulness of man's toil.

This is not one jot less true of a manufacturer, in the ordinary sense, than of the grower of wheat, or the raiser of cattle.

The main distinction between the enterprises connected with the growth of agricultural products, and those devoted to the making of factory goods, is this, that, the dependence of the farmer upon natural laws, and natural forces, and natural influences, is more manifest, and visibly direct, than is the dependence of the manufacturer upon other natural laws, forces, and influences.

Such dependence is however as real, as constant, as absolute in one case as it is in the other. The laws, for instance, that govern the production of steam by the action of heat upon water, or the creation of mechanical force by water falling upon a wheel, or the transmission of power by belts, are just as essential to manufacturing operations, as are those laws which enable the soil to germinate and feed a seed of wheat or those laws which cause the sun to ripen grain, or the rain to give sap to all vegetable life. A very slight change in the constitution of the atmosphere would stop every machine in the world, just as temporary changes of weather advance, or retard the growth of crops.

It is well known that certain goods cannot be made except where the water is suitable for certain processes employed in their production. In the same way certain crops cannot be grown in some districts because the soil is not suitable. Upon farmer and manufacturer alike Nature imposes limits to their skill. In all the enterprises of man nature demands obedience, and her essential and invaluable co-operation is denied to all who do not understand, or who do not obey her imperative edicts.

As converters of raw materials into finished products, for the service of man, the farmer and the manufacturer are engaged in what is fundamentally the same occupation.

There are however broad distinctions between the conditions under which farm and factory industries are carried on Those conditions seriously affect the position of the farmer as a tax payer to the State. Those circumstances have, we believe, not been sufficiently considered in framing our present fiscal system of, "Protection to native industries." We shall consider this question in a later issue.

Mr. Gladstone's Plan.

So many outlines of Mr. Gladstone's plans have been cabled from London recently, only to be contradicted the next day, that people over here have decided to wait until Mr. Gladstone himself breaks silence before trying to form an intelligent opinion of what he is likely to do. Of all the writers on this point none have given so clear an exposition of the possibilities of the situation as Justin McCarthy, and his express declaration was that Home Rule would not be postponed. The wish was doubtless father to the thought with him, but he is much closer to the Liberal leader than to those who are now trying their hands at predicting and is consequently more likely to have known the latter's intentions. With all the talk that there is concerning the Radical dissatisfaction it is not likely that it will be half as bad as Mr. Labouchere seems anxious to have it. Mr. McCarthy's idea was that there would be introduced in Parliament, coincidently with or immediately after the presentation of the Home Rule bill, such reasonable measures as would satisy every practical Radical and thus win their combined support. This would be more in accordance with Mr. Gladstone's habitual methods than the schemes which are now being attributed to him. His position means Home Rule if it means anything, and he is much too far along in life to wait until '94 before bringing in his bill.

Prosperity in Ireland.

So much is said and written about "poor old Ireland" that it is refreshing to learn that the Irish census returns, only recently made public, are quite satisfactory. To be sure they show a continued decrease in population but increased resources. The rateable valuation shows a gain from £13,812,000 in 1881 to £14,034,000 in 1891. There is not so much land in crops as there was during the preceding decade, but there is an increased acreage of grass and a considerable gain in the number of cattle, swine, asses and poultry. Within ten years the hens have increased by nearly a million and a half. There is a handsome increase, too, in the amount of savings bank deposits. The population in the ten years decreased from 5,174,836 to 4,704,750, and while it is pleasant to know, or at least to hope, that those left in Ireland are better off than they were ten years ago, still one cannot help believing Ireland is rich enough in natural resources and strong enough in the genius, enterprise and industry of her people to support in comfort a considerably larger population than she now has, provided the local conditions were such that she could do her best. The Ireland of forty years ago, however, was too densely populated. In 1847 the estimated population was 9,500,000. The country is little more than a sixth of the size of Ontario having an area of 32,713 square miles, while Ontario has about 181,800. Yet even now Ireland's population is about the same as that of all Canada.

A Spanish lady has succeeded in crossing the Andes in a carriage, a distance of 300 miles. The journey was completed in 11 days, though nearly a mile of the road had to be built for her use.

Sir E. Watkin is still very sanguine as to the ultimate results of his discovery of coal in Kent. One difficulty, however, is in the way—not less than £40,000 will be required to sink the first shaft.

STEAMSHIP ON A ROCK.

The State of Georgia in Trouble in the St. Lawrence Below Montreal.

A Montreal despatch says:—The steamship State of Georgia, Capt. Allan, met with an accident at Cape la Roche last evening which may result in the loss of the ship. The vessel was outward bound and when near the cape ran against a rock, cutting a hole in the bottom of the ship, letting the water in freely. The vessel did not remain on the rock, but became almost immediately free; the water, however, poured in, and it was found necessary to beach her. The State of Georgia is now lying on the south shore in a helpless condition. The vessel has settled down at the stern, and consequently the cargo must be damaged to a great extent. She had aboard 504 cattle belonging to James Eakins, of Port Hope. These were all got ashore with the exception of 10, which were drowned. Steam pumps have been ordered up from Quebec, and every effort will be made to save the ship and cargo. The State of Georgia was bound for Aberdeen. She was one of the steamers of the State line, but was sold by that company before it was absorbed by the Allan line. This was her fourth voyage from this port this season. Munderloh & Co. were the agents.

Besides the cattle the cargo consisted of 10,000 sacks of flour, 1,000 boxes of cheese, 500 tubs of butter and the balance mostly lumber. The flour, cheese and butter are nearly all damaged. The ship is being unloaded as rapidly as possible. This is the third accident that has occurred in the ship channel between here and Quebec in the past week.

North Pole Expeditions.

The safe return of Lieut. Peary's expedition, after having accomplished some interesting and more or less valuable scientific results, will be apt to stimulate other expeditions on a similar plan. It is not easy for one to understand the fascination which arctic exploration has for persons of a certain temperament. The record of attempts to reach or get near the north pole of the earth is a record of dreadful hardship and sacrifices from the time of Sir John Franklin's fatal failure to the horrible story of the survivors of Col. Greely's last adventure. This story so sickened the natives that for a considerable interval the official and public ardor which sustains ventures of the kind was weak. The possible gains did not appear to be an adequate recompense for the cruel risks. Adventurers were ready enough, because failure and suffering in such an enterprise confer only less renown than the highest success; but there was an unreadiness to "back" them with the necessary official and financial encouragement. Lieut. Peary's attempt was made upon a different plan from the others, and its comparative safety in execution will recommend it to imitation. He did not attempt to take a vessel into latitudes where the chances were against its ever getting back, and depend upon getting back in it. His party were transported to a point easily reached and left there until sent for. For further advance he depended upon the safer land conveyance by dogs and sledges common to the country. The report he brings back goes to confirm previous reports that Greenland is a great island bounded northwardly by a polar sea. He seems to have reached the limit of possible advance by this means. Others have told of beholding this sea. Whether it covers all the space surrounding the north pole, having Siberia for its opposite shore, no one knows, nor has any one been able to explore it in a vessel. Whether any further definite knowledge of it will ever be gained is purely a matter of conjecture. That there is enough faith and daring in the world to cause many attempts to be made in future time may be safely assumed.

But what useful end will be subserved by finding out whether or not there is an ice-bound, uninhabitable island between Greenland and the next known shore on the opposite side of the pole? Does it matter either with regard to this world or the next? What will be the gain to all men that will make it worth the sacrifice of a man's life or even a dog's life? What boots it to ascertain how cold it may be there? We know already that no human beings can endure it except under artificial conditions. We know by mathematical calculation how long and how far above or below the horizon the sun will be. The exploration of habitable regions where there are human beings to be enlightened and elevated and various novel forms of life to be studied, or which afford motives of commercial interest, is intelligible. The curiosity about the heavenly bodies and the movements of the members of the solar system of which this earth is a part is not unreasonable. But the exploration of the north polar region beyond limits already attained promises to be so barren of useful results and is fraught with such conditions of peril that it appears to be not much better than a wicked misuse of human energy and a waste of noble ambition.

Shocking Affair in Ireland.

On Sunday morning a woman, named Hannah Roche, was arrested in Waterford on a charge of having murdered her husband. On Saturday night the prisoner's husband, a laborer, and a son, aged 15, returned home, and finding Mrs. Roche out went to bed. It was nearly twelve o'clock when the wife returned, and it is alleged that she flung a lighted paraffin oil lamp at her husband's head. The glass broke, and Roche was enveloped in flames. The boy sprang out of the bed and escaped, but Roche died in a few hours after, suffering dreadful agonies. The woman was arrested and remanded pending the holding of an inquest.

The International Transportation Company, more generally known as the Inman Line, has awarded the contract for building its five new steamers to William Cramp & Sons. According to the requirements of the act of Congress these must be first-class ships in every respect and must be held subject to use by the government in case of necessity as auxiliary cruisers. They will be built with this possible use in view, and are expected to equal, if not surpass, their sister ships of the same line, the "City of Paris" and "City of New York," both of which will soon be transferred to American registry. These vessels will cost, it is expected, between $8,000,000 and $9,000,000. This fleet of ships will sail under the American flag, and will be manned as well as owned by Americans.

How to Have Cabbages in Winter.

The best way to provide cabbages for poultry in winter, at the least cost, is to store the cabbages in the ground, roots down, instead of burying the heads, placing them close together, and covering them with hay and corn stalks. You will be surprised at the excellent condition in which they will keep. You can remove the hay, cut out the head for the family table, and then cut the stalk off close to the ground, with its abundant outer leaves, and place it in the poultry yard. It is the training, not the freezing, that injures cabbages. The main crop may be buried with the heads in the ground, if preferred, but try a few with the roots down.

Newspaper Law.

The following condensation is based upon decisions rendered at various times by Division Court Judges :—

1. Subscribers who do not give definite notice to the contrary are considered as wishing to continue their subscription.

2. If subscribers order a paper to be discontinued, the publisher may continue to send it until all arrears of subscriptions are paid.

3. If subscribers neglect to take periodicals from the post office, they are likewise responsible till all arrearages for subscriptions are settled.

6. If subscribers pay in advance they are bound to give notice at the end of their time if they do not wish to continue taking the paper, otherwise the publisher may send until such time as a definite order to discontinue, accompanied by payment of all arrears is sent him.

In buying a ram you will of course look at his teeth to test his age. If they are clean he is in good health. A yearling will have two teeth in the jaw, a two-year-old four, a three year old six and so on until the animal is five years old when a full mouth of ten teeth is shown. After this the age of a sheep cannot be accurately told. For a small flock, a beginner will be able frequently to buy a thoroughbred ram four or five years old at a low price, because his owner does not like to inbreed after keeping him two or three years. The buyer has the advantage of seeing his progeny and judging the merits as a sire before buying the opportunity which a young animal does not present. Such a purchase should be carefully looked after to see he is in good condition, especially in the coupling season. Probably there is no other occasion when it pays to save money in buying a sire to head the flock.

Johnny—Just one, sir.

Inspector—What's the reason.

Johnny—Please sir, the Bible says that a man cannot serve two masters.

Not Always.

Somebody had been trying to impose on Bilkins and he came home indignant.

"Mary" he said to his wife, "I don't look like a fool, do I?"

"Not always Henry," she replied in such a tone that Bilkins shut right up.

Why Weeds Should be Killed.

Weeds take the same substance from the soil that valuable plants do. Analysis of the ash proves this. But if not removed from the soil, they return to it all they take, together with the nitrogen which they draw from the atmosphere. This is the way the virgin soil was graduall built up. Hence it is better for the soil to grow weeds than to grow nothing. But a soil that will grow weeds will grow something more valuable.

MINDEN, FRIDAY, JUNE 10, 1892

Haliburton Teachers' Convention.

THE 18th annual convention of the teachers of Haliburton Co. was held at the Village of Haliburton on June 2d and 3d last, when, considering the unfavorable appearance of the weather, a large number of the teaching profession and their friends were there to take part in the proceedings.

The proceedings were opened a few minutes past the appointed time by Rev. A. Walker, reading a passage of scripture and with prayer. After the roll was called the President, H. W. Brooks, then addressed the convention in a few concise and pointed remarks. He stated that a pupil's character was greatly influenced by the teacher, and that he considered that character was formed between the ages of seven and twenty-two. He claimed the beginning and end of life was in education. In reference to unprincipled teachers he said some were averse to being united for the common good and profit of all. He pressed upon the teachers to be united for our common good.

The remarks were commented upon by inspector Curry. He spoke in strong terms of teachers cultivating right principles, and showed that the great end of their work after all was the elevation of life and character.

The appointment of committees then followed :—

Nominating Committee—Miss Dover and Messrs. Leith & Eggleton.

Committee on Resolution—Messrs. Curry, Leith and McIntosh.

The morning session of first day then adjourned until 1.30.

Afternoon session of first day opened by Miss Dover presenting the Delegates' Report of 1891. The report was given to the association in form of a printed book, issued by the National Educational Association.

Mr. Leith followed with an able paper on "Phonics." He dealt with the language respecting both the phonetic and non-phonetic values, and in doing so, favored the phonetic. He pointed out in a forcible way some considerable defects of relation existing between the sounds and the characters representing them. He showed that the phonetic element should be entered into largely in teaching reading, yet the word method had a more important place than the phonic. He urged that the words be thoroughly taught.

A very interesting and practical lesson by Miss Davidson, was next given, on Phonic Reading. As the speaker proceeded with her explanations she illustrated thoroughly the method described. She believed that at first words as a whole should be taught by the look-and-say method from objects or pictures that the words should be taught thoroughly. The pupils should be taught to observe the sounds composing these words. The separation of the sounds must be the basis, followed later by synthesis. NO NAMES of letters as a, b, c, &c., are necessary at all, at least not in first reader, part I. Spelling, or the naming of letters was not reading, and spelling was not needed until pupils entered part II. "Reading," she claimed, "was SOUNDING the characters of a word." She thought that some attention at least should be given to the position and action of the organs of speech.

A very fine feature in the lesson was the blending of the Roman, Italic and Script characters in the written drill on reading. This spoke for and commended itself. Pronunciation should not be told but discovered by the pupil. The method was a very systematic one as well as most practical and was received with applause.

Mr. A. J. Perkins followed with a very elaborate but interesting paper on "History." He showed the great aims history should have, and stated that to teach it well required the love of history, which is undoubtedly true.

The closing subject for the afternoon was the Delegates' Report from the Provincial Association 1892, by Mr. Eggleton. In this report he gave a synopsis of the chief subjects that were given, and which effected teachers in general. The outline contained some valuable and practical suggestions.

Friday Morning.

The third session was opened by calling the roll, after which the reports of the various committees were received.

The officers elected for the ensuing year were as follows :—

President—Mr. J. A. McIntosh.

Vice-Pres.—Mr. H. W. Brooks.

Secretary—Mr. C. S. Eggleton.

Executive Committee—Miss Davidson, Dr. Curry, Mr. Leith and the above officers.

Delegates to Prov. Association 1893—Miss J. L. Bain and Mr. J. A. McIntosh.

Auditors—J. H. Delamere, Esq., and Mr. H. W. Brooks.

Library Committee—Miss Davidson, Messrs. Curry, Leith, McIntosh and Perkins.

After the election of officers and completing the general business Miss Dauncey was called to give a paper on "Right Doing in the School." She stated that children did wrong because they had not been trained to do right at home. In many cases they came to school with bad habits from lack of proper training and consequently it took a long time to correct them. Example, she thought, was the leading force brought to bear in school life, and that trust was one of the principal means to accomplish the end.

The next subject called was "Music in the Schools" by Miss Eva Young. Some of the chief benefits claimed for it were that it develops and enobles the young mind, removes restlessness and sluggishness in the school, and stimulates the energy. She showed the refining effect on character in general by alluding to some eminent minds. The paper was nicely illustrated by a practical lesson on the blackboard, and this commended itself.

Mr. Walker then gave a valuable lesson on "Decimals." The basis of the theory was clearly explained and successfully illustrated and that was certainly the principle thing. The lesson aimed at developing the individuality of the pupil by inducing them to tell and explain the steps taken from their own observation. This is the only right way. A lively discussion ensued regarding one or two technical points.

Dr. Curry, I.P.S., then addressed the association on "School examinations and exhibitions" in his usually interesting style. Referring to promotion examinations he said that teachers should promote by written tests guided by the limit of the work for each class, but should not go beyond this The best time to promote, he said, was at the end of each term. Circumstances might vary. He advised more attention to letter-writing, especially regarding correct form. Arithmetic, he claimed, should be of a practical character, and problems should involve principles.

Mr. Cook next gave a paper on "Introducing Geography to Primary Classes," gave some practical views on the subject, and said that teachers in order to do their work well should have the proper apparatus. He began with what the pupil saw and knew and proceeded to the unknown.

Mr. McIntosh then introduced "Discussion on Order and Discipline." He spoke of "tip-toe teachers," which aroused the curiosity of some of the ladies. He said "tip-toe teachers" made mean schools, but the association felt that these did not belong to the present era. Little or no discussion followed.

On the evening of the 2nd a very pleasing Magic Lantern Exhibition and lecture were given by Dr. Curry, I.P.S. The hall was packed full and the whole turn-out seemed to be at the height of enjoyment.

The next meeting of the Association will be held at Minden in June, 1893.

IRONDALE

TIMES are a little dull here at present, crops are looking fine and growing rapidly; our railroad is moving slow but sure, and now that we have got half a dozen nice new red carts to be used on the work it will proceed more rapidly as more men are expected soon on the track building, it is expected the road will be built as far as Gooderham this season.

Our village has not grown much this season yet—that corner lot is still vacant—but we are bound to grow. We have two trains a day coming in and although they are not always heavily laden it still helps to keep things moving.

We had some tea parties in this locality lately for the benefit of our Minister that were very successful, quite a few of our young people taking part in the entertainment including the daughters of Mr. P. Barr.

Death has been busy amongst us and carried off Mr. John Williams, a useful settler; Mr. John Needler was drowned in Burnt River and Mr. Chas. Davis died very suddenly of heart disease, and Fanny Ethel Barr died after an illness of a couple of weeks and was buried in the Kinmount Cemetery on the 1st instant. Rev. C. Day has been most attentive and kind under the circumstances, and has many warm friends for himself here.

Well, well, the ECHO only $1 a year.

VAST MINERAL RESOURCES.

How Ontario will Advertise her Great Natural Wealth at the World's Fair.

The World's Fair at Chicago will be the first exhibition that has ever done justice to the minerals of Ontario. Canada has been allotted 10,000 feet altogether for mineral, of which Ontario should have at least 4,000 feet, while 5,000 feet will be used if it can be obtained. These minerals come from all sections of the Province. From the immediate country north-east of Toronto comes lead, copper, iron, gold, marble, granite, mica, asbestos, and phosphate of lime. Then from Western Ontario comes gypsum, petroleum, marl, salt, terra cotta clay, and various kinds of building stone. Around Sudbury and on the north shore of Lake Huron are found rich deposits of nickel, copper and iron, while further west again are silver, marble and lead; in fact these are found all over the northern portion of the Province.

A fact not generally known, even in the Province itself, but which this exhibit will fully show the world, is that in various parts of Ontario, such as Renfrew, Cornwall, Frontenac and some of the nothern districts, the finest marbles and granites, grey, black, white and brown, to be obtained anywhere in the world are found.

Hon. A. S. Hardy, Commissioner of Crown Lands, is determined to have the mineral resources of this Province properly advertised to the world, and looks at the coming fair as Ontario's opportunity. By his direction every effort is being make to assist the Ontario Commissioner for the fair to secure a collection worthy of the Province, and which it is naturally well able to produce.

The Echo will gladly receive and forward specimens from this locality.

MR. EDITOR.

DEAR SIR,—Would you be kind enough to take a trip with me from Kinmount east on the Monk road; but of course before leaving the beautiful village of Kinmount we will call on our friends Pym of the Northern and J. Bowie of the Central Hotel to satisfy the appetite of a traveller. As this road is rather rough we will require our heads to be firm and straight. The first place to attract our attention is the striking little village of Irondale; here we see quite a number of men working on the I.B & O. Railway. We had better stop here and take refreshments with Mr. Hancock of the Grand Central Hotel. As we proceed we will notice the Post-office and boarding house kept by Mr. P. Barr. The next farm we see is that of the Flood Bros., they are very hard working men as their farms show for they have everything clean and tidy around them; on farther east are the three farms of the White Bros., still further east we see other thrifty farms but the first place of much importance is the flourishing village of Gooderham with two hotels, two stores, Grist and saw mills and several retired farmers live here amongst the lovely scenes of the lakes that surround this charming place; and a little farther on we will turn to our right and take a view of some farms in the Township of Glamorgan; the first to notice here is that of H. Raby and his brother, also near bye is the 400 acre farm of J. O. Tindle & Sons where you will find all kinds of machinery; farther still south we will find the grand residence of A. McCall reeve of the township of Glamorgan; Archie is just the right man in the right place. Now we will retrace our steps to the Monk road, going on east we see some rather nice farms belonging to Mr. Joseph Hadley, and now we come to the boundary of Monmouth; here we see the farm of Mr. Jas. White where there are all kinds of fruit growing. As we journey on we notice some very good farms but the first of any account is that of Mr. T. Clark of the Hotspur Post-office; here Mr. Editor we had better stop for the night and hear Uncle Thomas talking politics as he is a grand old conservative. Now we will proceed on our way; we have a long tract of barren country mostly rocks and minerals, but we will soon see Rock Lake, here we leave the Monk road and turn to our left where we see the village of Wilberforce, this is about the nicest settlement in Monmouth. Mr. Dunsford has a fine saw-mill here. Mr. Dillman has a fine store and the farmers of note are; W. White Esq., R. Ritchie Esq., and R. Couckell & Sons. Now we will strike the Haliburton road and as we have had quite a drive we will proceed homewards, we will notice here the farm of the Graham Bros. they have some fine stock such as horses, cattle, sheep and swine; coming west we notice some nice farms but Mr. Editor if you are not too tired we will turn to our left and go to see the mines of phosphate and mica, and we will leave our team at Mr. Jas. McCrea's and get our friend James to pilot us through the woods; Oh! what lovely scenes we can see as we wind our way through the woods, James is a great mineralist and can show you minerals of various kinds through these woods. Now as we have had a nice and pleasant walk we had better try our steeds again and proceed homewards. Reaching the main road we see Al Gibson's farm, he is also post-master of Esonville, the next is F. Gibson's well worked farm, and several other farms too numerous to mention, but the last farm is that of Mr. Maguire; this settlement is twelve miles from Haliburton, now Mr. Editor the road is good so we will proceed as fast as we can to the Queen's Hotel where we can have refreshments and have a friendly chat with our old friend, Kellett.

Not wishing to take up any more space in your valuable paper, and asking you to take a drive with me in the near future through the Township of Cardiff. I am, Mr. Editor, your humble servant,

A TIRED TRAVELLER.

The June Cosmopolitan.

IN variety of subject and popular treatment the contents of the June Cosmopolitan furnish an attractive standard. The magazine is leading a movement for the solution of the problem of Aeriel Navigation, and Hiram S. Maxim, the great inventor and foremost authority on the subject, gives the result of some recent experiments under the title, "The Aeroplane."

St. George Mivart, who for forty years has been known to the public as an ardent student and thoughtful writer upon all subjects connected with evolution, begins a series of papers in the June Cosmopolitan, in which he will set forth the conclusions he has reached in regard to the great theory of natural selection and its philosophical bearings upon the religious thought of the day. The Magazine opens with a charming Philadelphia story by Jan vier, with artistic illustrations from Wilson de Meza. Miss Hewitt, daughter of ex-Mayor Hewitt, gives some very sound advice regarding Fashions and Counterfeits in Bric-a-Brac. Miss Hewitt is a connoisseur and an authority on such subjects, and gives the result of some unusual opportunities she has enjoyed for personally inspecting the manufacture of forged articles of vertu. The fiction includes a mysterious and peculiar story by Howard Pyle, the well known illustrator, accompanied by two fine pictures of his, and "Maw" a rather striking character of slave life. Other important articles in this number are, "The working of the Labor Department," by the Commissioner of Labor, Carroll D. Wright, and Fur Seals in Alaska. Another sonnet of James Russell Lowell's is published in this number and a poem by Inigo Deane with a full page illustration from the pen of Will Low. Many people will read with interest also the poem "Mystery," by Amelia Riges. Among artists employed to illustrate this number are Kenyon Cox, H. Siddons Mowbray, Will H. Low, Wilson de Meza, Walter Crane, Howard Pyle and L. W. Kemble. Murat Halstead, Brander Matthews and Edward Everett Hale are among the other contributors.

Volney V. Ashford, a former Port Hope boy, is at present under arrest with a number of others at Honolulu, charged with treason, the object said to be in view was the establishment of a Republic. A telegram from his brother C. W. Ashford to friends in Toronto, says there are no facts to prove charges.
